

BONUS MEASURE FINALLY PLACED BEFORE SENATE

Sen. McCumber Presents Bill

claims against the government but that every time it was proposed to compensate the soldiers, objection was made. Urging Sen. McCumber to make a motion to bring the bill before the senate he shouted that the time had come to show "pluck and grit, courage and sand."

Sen. McCumber explained that he was stopped from offering any such motion by the "gentleman's agreement" that no controversial legislation would be called up without advance notice being given to senators.

Sen. Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, said he wanted it understood that Sen. Williams' action did not represent the sentiment on the democratic side of the chamber.

Informal canvasses of each side have indicated that the bonus legislation has a substantial majority in the senate but whether the amended house bill will be approved is problematical.

A finance committee report estimated that the total cost of legislation would be $1,845,459,491, spread over a period of 45 years from next January 1, when the legislation would become operative. This total is $250,000,000 less than the estimate under the house bill.

This measure differs somewhat from the bill that was reported to the senate last year and later sent back to the finance committee at the request of President Harding. The most important change from the original measure is the elimination of the cash bonus and reclamation features. As now drafted the legislation would give each veteran the right to select any one of the following plans:

Adjusted service pay, but only if his adjusted service credit did not exceed $50.

Adjusted service certificate with bank and government loan provisions.

Vocational training aid.

Farm and home aid.

Land settlement aid.

The estimated cost for each of these plans is $16,000,000 for the cash payments.

FRENCH BANKERS TALK
PROPOSED GERMAN LOAN

PARIS, June 8.—(By A. P.)—The international bankers committee which has under consideration a loan for Germany, met Thursday afternoon for more than two hours, discussed the situation created by the reply of the reparations commission, at the end of which time it was announced that another meeting would be held Friday to consider the continuation of the same subject.

Although members of the committee separated with the usual understanding not to discuss what occurred at the meeting, the talk among the entourage of the committee appeared to indicate that their views as to the immediate termination of the committee's work. One suggestion was that the French government might point a way in which the bankers could continue their examination of the possibility of a loan without any essential change in Premier Poincare's policy.

it to crash into another. She added that neither she nor Mrs. Burke had considered the accident important and therefore had not reported it.

Then Mrs. Hooke told this story of the card party:

"On the night of the shooting," she said, "she crossed the street to the Ward home to take a walk with Mrs. Ward. After a brief conversation, however, Mrs. Ward decided to get up a poker party and assembled her guests by telephone."

Mr. Hooke was ill, and did not attend, according to his wife, who said she left at 10:30. About a dozen guests were still playing cards at that time, she said. She declined to name the guests before being officially questioned, but asserted that "they were our own set."

No disturbance occurred in the Ward home while she was there, she continued and she heard none later. Ward was not home and she did not see Peters in the house.

District Attorney Weeks declared the explanation of the broken glass was the first hint he had heard that an accident had occurred on the Ward driveway the night of the shooting.

When he was asked if Mrs. Hooke or the Burkes had been subpoenaed, Mr. Weeks declared there had not been time.

The player, according to the police, engaged in a revolver duel with Zimmerman's bartender and Zimmerman was shot when he came into the room to learn the cause of the shooting.

majority of retail coal dealers of the effort, he said, to supply their customers without unusual profits.

Mr. Hoover contended that there had been no price fixed for coal but that the operators were requested to carry out his proposal "that Garfield prices for run of mine coal should be the basis for computing sales prices, with such adjustments as are necessary to include the wholesale selling costs, charged conditions at the mine, and other factors that will be fair to the public and to the operator and will maintain production of coal."

"Any agreement to adhere to this," he added, "is a moral agreement between each operator and myself."

Wholesalers, Mr. Hoover announced Thursday, have arranged among themselves to continue doing business on a pre-strike basis.
